The meeting was called to order by Aleah Phillips at 6PM. Committee members, school administrators, instructors, business and industry partners, NTHS inductees, their parents, and community stakeholders introduced themselves and shared their professional roles and affiliations. We inducted eight NTHS members from various pathways offered at Centennial. Centennial's CTE Advisory Meeting was facilitated by Caroline Koenighshof who is a business and partner at Centennial.

Centennial's CTE Coordinator reviewed the school's CTAE goals and objectives using the Centennial's CTE Fact Sheet. Highlights included program offerings, enrollment trends in each pathway, pathway completion, certification opportunities, work-based learning participation, and alignment with district and state priorities. Committee members affirmed the continued relevance of Centennial's CTE pathways in preparing students for postsecondary education, careers, and industry credentials.

The committee discussed opportunities to expand and strengthen partnerships between Centennial High school and local business and organizations. Suggested collaborations included community forums, guest speakers, field trips, job shadowing, internships, mock interviews, and classroom presentations. Topics included labor market demands, evolving industry expectations, technology integration, and the importance of employability and soft skills. Advisory members shared their insights from their respective industries.

Eight students were inducted into the National Technical Honor Society from their respective pathways. Students shared their success stories highlighting leadership development, classroom participation, field trip experiences, and competitive events. Students also shared their postsecondary plans.

Committee members provided feedback on program strengths and offered recommendations for continued improvements. Committee members participated in a business and computer science survey. Feedback emphasized industry alignment, student access to learning, funding for each program, and continued growth of CTE opportunities. Field trip donations were discussed along with the addition of Cybersecurity Program Pathway. The Committee emphasized the importance of teaching soft skills, initiative, proactivity, productivity, problem solving, critical thinking, and writing.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned at 7:40PM

Best,
